PHOENIX, Feb. 27, 2019 /PRNewswire/ -- Troxell, a national leader in education technology & collaboration solutions for more than 60 years, is happy to announce Taylor Isaac as the new Google Channel Account Manager. He will work closely with school districts throughout the nation on their classroom innovation and technology goals and initiatives. Taylor is taking over the position from Chadwin Smith, who recently departed the company.

"I am excited to continue the partnership between Troxell and Google for Education," said Taylor Isaac. "I look forward to providing our teachers, students, and schools with access to the collaborative tools of G Suite for Education, powerful and affordable Chromebooks, and the Google Cloud Platform."

"I'm very pleased to have Taylor join the Business Development team at Troxell," said Bob Berry, Troxell's Vice President of Business Development. "Having previously worked on our Marketing team puts him in a great position to help positively affect our customers' Google experience."

Taylor joined Troxell in August of 2017 as the Marketing Traffic Coordinator, where he collaborated with all facets of the Marketing Department. He worked closely with Troxell's technology partners, including Google and Chromebook manufacturers, to create compelling customer and sales facing promotional materials. His familiarity with Troxell's 1:1 initiatives and complete solution service offerings allows him to approach Google for Education customer and sales support with a wholistic mindset.

You may contact Taylor Isaac at 602-437-7240 x1727 and taylor.isaac@trox.com.
