PHOENIX, Feb. 21, 2019 /PRNewswire/ -- Troxell, a national leader in education technology and collaboration solutions for more than 60 years, is proud to announce it has been added as preferred provider to the Illinois Learning Technology Purchase Program (ILTPP) for Interactive Touch Screen Displays, in partnership with Boxlight Corporation (Nasdaq: BOXL) and its ProColor 65-inch and 75-inch panels. Accompanying accessories are also available on the program.

Effective January 1-December 31, 2019, Troxell, in conjunction with the ILTPP contract, offers competitive tiered pricing for Boxlight.

All suppliers chosen to participate in the program are referred by education personnel and have not been solicited from the general public.

The Illinois Learning Technology Purchase Program (ILTPP) was jointly developed in 1998 by the Learning Technology Centers, the Regional Offices of Education, and the Intermediate Service Centers, responding to needs assessment information provided by district personnel statewide.

ILTPP, a statewide cooperative of Illinois K-12 educational organizations, aggregates buying power and expertise to procure technology products and services at better prices than those available to individual organizations.

"Troxell is happy to participate in ILTPP with the addition of Boxlight Interactive Touch Screen Displays and multiple accessory products," said Mike Ruprich, Troxell's CEO. "We look forward to transforming classrooms, with a wider variety of innovative technology offerings."
