PHOENIX, Oct. 24, 2017 /PRNewswire/ -- Troxell, a national leader in education technology and collaboration solutions for more than 60 years, is proud to announce it has been awarded the Jefferson County Public Schools Bid #7310 – Audiovisual. As one of 8 vendors awarded the contract, Troxell participated in the competitive sealed bid process and was granted the award based on successful evaluations of required performance and provider criteria.

Contract number 7310 – Audiovisual, awarded by Jefferson County Public Schools, Louisville, KY, is effective from September 27, 2016 - September 23, 2017 with the recent renewal through September 23, 2018. On the contract, Troxell represents multiple manufacturers for products, offering a wide range of discounts.

"We are pleased to be awarded the Audiovisual contract through Jefferson County Public Schools," said Dottie Stewart, Regional Vice President of Sales - Central and Northeast. "Troxell is happy to help JCPS reach their goal of providing equal access to education for all students."

Through Jefferson County Public Schools, Troxell participated in a comprehensive Request for Proposal (RFP) competitive solicitation. JCPS employs industry best practices, processes and procedures to procure any commodity, supply, service, or construction project with an aggregate annual dollar expenditure of $20,000 or more.

Troxell continues to participate in multiple national, regional, state and local contracts, helping educational institutions pay less for products and reduce administrative costs in order to overcome the challenges of tight and diminishing budgets.
