PHOENIX, Sept. 28, 2017 /PRNewswire/ -- Troxell, a national leader in education technology and collaboration solutions for more than 60 years, is happy to announce Michelle Cutting as the new Account Executive for the Central Pennsylvania Territory. She will work closely with school districts in her area as they strive to make improvements through education technology.

"I'm very excited to be working for Troxell," said Michelle Cutting. "I look forward to assisting districts with their traditional AV needs, as well as partnering with districts to find solutions in the 1:1 collaborative learning space, asset management and campus safety."

"Michelle brings a great enthusiasm and history with school districts around the region that will help our customers," said Dottie Stewart, Regional Vice President of Troxell's Northeast and Central Territories. "I am very excited to welcome her to the Troxell team, and we look forward to continuing to grow our relationships with the school districts in the Central Pennsylvania area."

Michelle has over 10 years of experience working with schools and districts. She spent 7 years working with schools as a school photography and yearbook account manager, with 6 of those years at Lifetouch National School Studios. She then spent 2 and a half years at SMART Technologies as an Educational Solutions Specialist in PA, consulting with districts to find the best collaborative solution for their students. Michelle has also worked with districts as an account executive for an AV reseller in education, as a District Manager for Source4Teachers providing substitute teachers and staff to districts, as well as, working for a K-5 writing and curriculum company.

You may contact Michelle Cutting at her office phone: 908-238-1043, her mobile phone: 717-319-7857, and her email: michelle.cutting@trox.com.
